

Presidential Message

At this stage members have had an opportunity of discussing, at State Branch level, the pilot policy on specialisation and all its implications.

Replies have been received from the State Branches and a more concise and modified policy is now being formulated. This is at the moment being circulated among members of the Federal Executive and when finalised will be sent to all State Branches for comment.

Recommendations have also been received from State Branches for alterations to the Constitution and these have been passed to the Committee specially appointed by the Executive.

It is planned to co-ordinate these recommendations with suggestions by the Executive, and with the proposals which were received but not discussed by the last general meeting.

In view of the rapid growth of the Society in recent years the Constitution certainly needs up-dating and the Executive believes that a general overhaul by a special committee will achieve this purpose in the simplest and quickest manner.
