

AN EDITORIAL NOTE

This issue marks the first time that the Boston College Industrial and Commercial Law Review has published six times during the academic year. Intramural enthusiasm for the Review has paralleled the growing demand from the profession for our journal. We note with appreciation the response of both groups.

One of the highlights of this issue is the 1970-1971 Annual Survey of Labor Relations Law. This comment, written by Labor Law Editors Bob O'Neil and Rick Perras, presents a comprehensive analysis of the major developments in the field of labor law from April, 1970 to April, 1971. The Board of Editors extends our congratulations on this comment.

The Board of Editors of the Boston College Industrial and Commercial Law Review regrets that without their knowledge an article entitled "Federal Regulation of Prescription Drug Advertising and Labeling," written by Mr. Gary L. Boland, an outside author who has no connection with the Review, which article appeared in the December, 1970 issue, contained material originally researched and written by Richard B. Ruge, Esq., a member of the District of Columbia bar, which material Mr. Boland did not seek permission to use and for which use Mr. Boland gave Mr. Ruge no credit. The material, which appears in approximately forty paragraphs at pages 203-235 of the issue, was part of an unpublished paper written by Mr. Ruge in 1966 at Harvard Law School, the only available copy of which was contained in the Harvard Law School Library. In revised form, some of the same material appeared in an article by Mr. Ruge entitled "Regulation of Prescription Drug Advertising: Medical Progress and Private Enterprise," in the Autumn, 1967 issue of Law and Contemporary Problems, copyright in 1967 by Duke University; in a book entitled Medical Progress and the Law, published by Oceana Publications, Inc., and copyright in 1967, 1968 and 1969 by Duke University; and in the December, 1969 issue of Publishing Entertainment, Advertising and Allied Fields of Law Quarterly, copyright in 1969 by Callaghan & Co.

The Board of Editors is pleased to announce that it has selected a successor Board to manage and edit Volume XIII of the Review. The gentlemen selected as editors for the coming year proved to be outstanding staff members during the past year. We are certain that they will comprise a distinguished Board of Editors. We herewith introduce them by name, position and undergraduate institution: Michael S. Greco, Editor in Chief, Princeton University; Joseph M. Piepul, Executive Editor, Boston College; Terrance P.
