SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

Instructions for Authors

Articles for Perichoresis should be submitted exclusively by email to the Managing Editor at perichoresis@emanuel.ro. Each submission will be acknowledged in this format. The average length of articles should be 8.000 words. We are willing, however, to consider articles in excess of 8.000 words should such a length be absolutely necessary. All articles should be written at a single line spacing with footnotes (not endnotes), which must be typed at a single line spacing and must be justified entirely. Terms like idem, ibidem (ibid.), and op. cit. can be used, but not exceedingly (although we prefer not to use them). Double quotation marks should be used for quotation and single quotation marks for quotation within a quotation. Greek and Hebrew words need not be transliterated and they should not be used very often. Transliteration is recommended and must be performed in accordance with current academic rules. For editorial purposes, please use the latest edition of the Harvard Style for Sage. Please note that all articles must be preceded by a brief abstract (up to 200 words) and five key words.

Perichoresis does not collect article processing charges (APCs) or submission charges.

Editorial Policy

The Board of Editors and the Editorial Advisors will assess every submission and all contributors will be informed in due course (within 4 weeks) on whether their articles are considered for publication or not.

Perichoresis has an editorial review policy for invited papers, as well as peer review and blind peer review for non-invited articles.
